John and his friends want to go on a bike trip through the Scottish Highlands.

John hasn't got a modern bike, so he must have a look at his old bike first: Is it OK?

But John's bike is in the cellar (= Keller), behind all the other family bikes.

John must move the other bikes before he can have a look at his bike.

"Oh, no!" John thinks. "The chain has fallen off. How is that possible?"

John wants to carry his bike to the garden and ask his dad for help.

But his bike isn't easy to lift because it's heavy.

While John is taking the bike to the garden, his dad is working in the garden.

"Dad, can you help me with my bike, please?" John asks.
